A Message From Maya

In the past 5 years since founding, Alveus Sanctuary has grown into so much more than we could have imagined, but 2025 was a year we will never forget.

In 2025, Alveus Sanctuary continued to bring conservation education to hundreds of millions of young people through the internet. Our incredible staff and animals helped bring awareness to the pet trade, agricultural industry, fashion industry, and more. We leaned into mobilizing our community for policy changes and voting to protect our planet. Our animal care staff continued working hard and passionately for our rescued animals and I am proud that Alveus continues to exemplify excellence in animal welfare. Our Facilities and Infrastructure Department (FAID) continued expanding and improving our animals' enclosures and Alveus' general infrastructure to meet our ever-growing professional standards. Our livestream production quality improved steadily over the past year and our collaborative programs have continued to be hugely successful in educational reach and fundraising. There is so much more growth and improvement to acknowledge, I truly just feel like everything has been on the up and I couldn't be more proud!

As Executive Director, my role evolved quite a bit this past year. As a representative of Alveus, I committed to more speaking engagements, conferences, and travel opportunities than ever before. We developed relationships with a number of well-respected conservation entities through our Alveus Adventures travel YouTube series, I became a part of National Geographic's inaugural Creator Cohort, and I accepted the opportunity to deliver a TED Talk about Alveus Sanctuary in Vancouver for 2026. As our professional network grows through these opportunities, Alveus continues to develop an outstanding reputation as an exciting and powerful emerging force for conservation.

Last but definitely not least, in October, we announced the Alveus Research & Recovery Institute (ARRI). Alongside our ARRI announcement, we launched our most successful fundraiser of Alveus history and raised $1 million in just 3 days. I have always been grateful for how supportive our online community has been, but I was absolutely blown away by the generosity and excitement that was shared for this new adventure.

As we roll into 2026, we are endlessly grateful for our online community for trusting us to build this organization and carry out this mission. 2025 presented challenges and difficulties that sometimes made it hard to feel human. Alveus Sanctuary and its online community are beacons of hope for the future of our natural world and all of the people, plants, and critters that call it home.

GROWING ONLINE IMPACT

Alveus saw incredible growth across all platforms in 2025. Whether it was through collaborations, stream highlights, or educational programs, Alveus content was viewed by over 250 million people last year.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Alveus Adventures was a brand new series in 2025 that aimed to amplify the work being done by conservation organizations around the country and fundraising for their programs.

During Show and Tell, Alveus community members shared what they were doing in their lives to support conservation and appreciate nature. Over 1,000 community members contributed 26,200 hours to Show and Tell in 2025.

Chat Chats brought subject matter experts like entomologists and primatologists and paleontologists to answer questions about the work they do in their fields and how it relates to the work Alveus does.

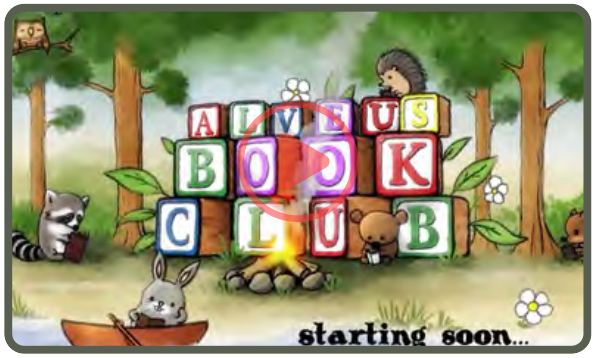

During Animal Care Chats, members of the animal care team brought chat along for their daily routines - taking care of and training the animal ambassadors at Alveus and answering questions from community members.

In 2025, we continued the Animal Quest Series with a feature on our Wolf-Dogs: Awa and Akela. This program highlighted wolves and their importance as keystone species as well as wolf-dogs and hybridization.

Book Club is a new series that began in 2025 where staff and viewers read a conservation or nature related book and then discuss the book and peoples thoughts on it on stream.

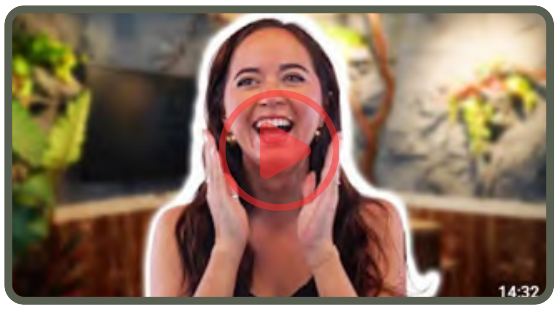

In 2025, we expanded our Facilities and Infrastructure Department (FAID). Through Connor Projects, Live Laugh Lukas, and other Facilities focused streams, viewers were able to join members of FAID as they worked to build new enclosures, upgrade old ones, and perform other facilities related activities at the sanctuary.

Investing in Programs and Ambassadors

In 2025, Alveus put a major emphasis on upgrading our enclosures and program spaces. Thanks to the incredible support of the community, we are able to go above and beyond when it comes to providing spaces for our non-releasable animal ambassadors to live.

In March we unveiled our New Studio, built with the generous support of Twitch.

April saw a New Georgie Enclosure, Reptile upgrades and Pushpop's Enclosure.

In May the chickens got to move into their new chicken mansion.

In September Stompy moved into his new enclosure and got a friend thanks to Mr. Beast.

In November, we revamped the marmoset enclosure with the help of Dr Julie.

In December, the fox enclosure was expanded by over 8x during 60 Hours: Foxes or Fired.

2025 New Ambassadors!

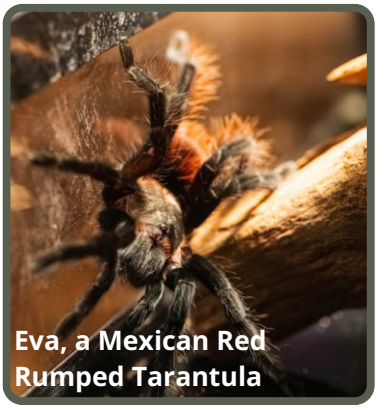

In January Alveus rescued Akela, a wolf-hybrid. Along with Awa, the wolf-hybrids help educate people about responsible pet ownership, historic persecution of wolves by humans, and the importance of wolves as keystone species in their ecosystems.

In March, our first plant ambassadors were introduced! Pitchjars the Pitcher-Plant, Dewey the Fork-Leaved Sundew, Butt the Mexican Butterwort, Stinky the Corpse Flower, Marty Mcfly the Venus Fly Trap, and Drew the Flask Shaped Pitcher Plant are ambassadors for the conservation of plants and reducing the poaching of wild plants.

In June, Kiwi the Honduran Curly-Hair Tarantula and Eva the Mexican Red Rump Tarantula were generously donated by Evantomology to teach people about the importance of spiders in our ecosystems.

Nolie, a Common Emu

In September, we rescued Nolie with the help of Mr. Beast and his team. Along with Stompy, Nolie is an ambassador to help teach viewers about the exotic meat trade, traditional medicine, and the use of animal products in cosmetics.

2025 Flood and Community Reaction

In July, Alveus was impacted by the devastating floods that impacted much of the Central Texas region. The floods washed out the road leading onto the property, blocking access to the only way in and out of the sanctuary.

Huge thanks to Agent00, chrisnxtdoor, cinna, zoil, emiru, knut, wakewilder, esfand, misterarthur, leanbeefpatty, professionalweakguy, simply, peachjars, sennyk4, bryceup, jackthebus, and everyone who volunteered to help clear the damage caused by the flood.

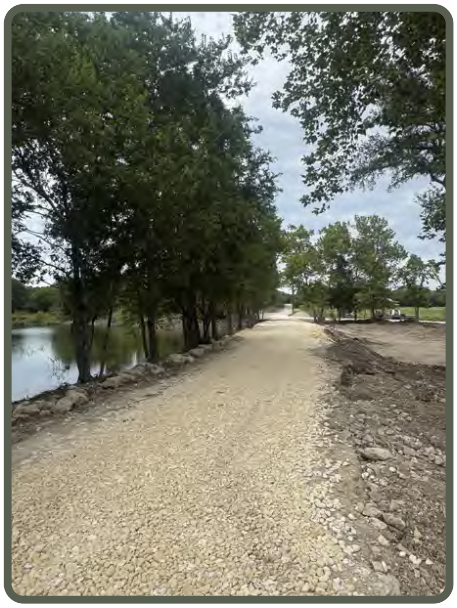

Thank you to the over 3,000 community members and streamers who donated to support rebuilding the washed out road!

Alveus Research & Recovery Institute

In October 2025, we announced that we will be taking the Alveus approach into the wild with the Alveus Research and Recovery Institute (ARRI). ARRI will focus on conservation technology and genetics research as well as host a breeding and release program for critically endangered red wolves and Mexican gray wolves.

With the announcement of ARRI, Alveus also began the Pixel Project, our capital campaign to support the development of the program. Anyone interested in supporting ARRI could donate to have their name included on a mural that will be placed inside the institute. The initial fundraising goal of $1 million was met in THREE DAYS! The community support for this new expansion has been so strong that another mural was created for the Pixel Project 2 in November.
